CLEAR & HONEST MARKETING

CONFIDENT THROUGH BRANDING CENIRIL LEADERSHIP COACHING

“The process was really impressive, and the quality of what was created has genuinely blown me away.”

Nick French, Ceniril etc.

Context: Nick French of Ceniril Coaching is, a leadership development coach whose career spans food service, construction, education and board-level roles. While Nick’s reputation and impact were strong, his existing website no longer reflected who he had become as a coach. It failed to express the depth of his lived experience, his emotionally intelligent leadership philosophy, or his distinctive blend of challenge and empathy. More importantly, it was not performing as a meaningful business development tool.

Glued was engaged to help articulate Nick’s unique offer, clarify his positioning and translate that a confident, authentic digital presence.

The requirements: At the outset, Nick did not want a superficial rebrand or a simple redesign. He needed help defining what truly differentiated him in a crowded coaching market, how his personal story underpinned his professional credibility, and how his work helped leaders feel confident, resilient and successful. The requirement was to capture this insight, distil it into a clear brand proposition and then build a website that felt unmistakably “him”.

A critical early step was an in-depth interview with Nick, allowing us to explore his background, values, leadership philosophy and the emotional drivers behind his work.

The outputs: Following the discovery phase, Glued produced a detailed brand proposition document that articulated Ceniril’s purpose, values, audience focus and core themes. This process helped Nick clearly see and own unique offer: leadership development rooted in confidence, empathy and lived experience rather than rigid methodologies or authoritarian models.

With the proposition agreed, we designed and built a new website that translated this thinking into tone, structure and visual language. The site focuses on Nick’s coaching philosophy, his credibility across sectors, and the outcomes he helps clients achieve, while using clear messaging pathways to guide visitors towards contact and enquiry. The overall feel balances professionalism with emotional warmth, reinforcing trust and authenticity at every point.

Importantly, the website was conceived not as a brochure, but as a platform to support ongoing marketing, content creation and business development.

The results: Ceniril now has a digital presence that accurately reflects Nick’s story, values and impact. The clarity gained through the proposition work gave Nick renewed confidence in how he talks about his work and who it is for. The new website provides a strong foundation for lead generation, SEO and future content, while positioning Ceniril clearly within leadership development for SMEs, senior leaders in construction and education-focused leadership teams.

Most importantly, Nick now has a brand and website that feel true to him, and that allow potential clients to quickly understand not just what he does, but why his approach is different and valuable.
